[From the Lauisville Ledger | OHIBRING THAT BASKET BACK TO ME -A SONG.

BY ALICE M'CLUBE GRIFFIN.

Oh! bring that basket back to me, And set your wicked conscience free, And wrpe from it the sintal stam.

I placed those bright immortelles there-Fit emblems of the soul above, For no one yet had thought to rear O'er him a monument of love.

Whose idle hand, with stealthy grasp, Purfoined the tiny off-ring? Can such a hand expect to chasp. Another's now without a sting?

Pray, who are you? to take the llowers, And east asi le the image fair, How could such secret, thicking powers Steal them before that shell and prayers?

Who could so desecrate the grave Where sleeps the poet in his rest? None hat a poor and coward slave

Could take the flowers from off his breast. . Then bring that basket back again,

And ask the augels to forgive Year ido trespass, or the state - Will deepen on you while you live. LOUISVILLE, March 2, 1871, Tom Marshall on Papal Supremacy.

The discourses of the pulpit and the pre at the present time in regard to apprehended dangers of papal supremacy in this country bring to my mind certain remarks of the late Thomas F. Marshall, at Columbus, Ohio, in 1856, on the subject. Know-Nothi then arevalent, and many members of on-Legislature had been elected by the order. number of these gentlemen crowded around Marshall one evening at the Neil House, importunate to obtain his views. He straightened himself up and gave evilence, in his manner, of a certain degree of coatempt for his interrogators, and replied: Gentlemen, some time ago, when I saw every American ruffian and blackguard so saleitous to preserve for us a pure religion, and so concerned about the Pope's taking this country, I may say that I was a little abunned, and, acvording to my habit, began to study the danger. I soon loung that the Pope had no ships in which to cross the ocean, and it all at once struck me that, for a man of his age, it would be such a d-d long swim that nabody need.

The Solons slowly dispersed, Marshall'. views are commended to the attention of a terrified pulpit and press.

LITERARY BOHEMIANS. - Professor Nonli Porter, in his "Books and Reading," thus sketches the "Robemian:" "He is a person of no mean qualifications, but smart rather than solid, and apt rather than trustworthy. He has received an education more or less acomplished, from the hiished classical culture of the English University, down to the scanty but stimulating curriculum of the printing and editorial rooms. He has a facile command of the pen, a good memory, a ready wit, and intervolubility. His assurance is a room-particular volubility. His assurance is a room-particular volubility. The topological volubility is a surance is a room-particular volubility. The topological volubility is a surance is a room-particular volubility. The topological volubility is a surance is a room-particular volubility in the topological volubility is a surance of command of the surance volubility. The topological volubility is a surance is a room-particular volubility in the topological volubility is a volubility of the surance volubility. The topological volubility is a volubility of the volubility and his principles and his sense of consistency never stand in the way of an engagement He does not hesitate to write leaders at the same time in the organs of two opposing parties, —lor and against protection, or whatever question divides the parties of the day. He is ready for hire to applied and to defime any man, and to extoland depress the same man in two successive weeks, according to his engagement. He is, of course, thoroughly tusineere and he has no convictions except upon wsingle point, and that is, that those who pretend to have any are either weakly, self-deceived or are selt-conscious knaves. And yet no class of writers uses the vocabulary of earnestness more lervently and impressively than he."

How TO CURE STAMMERING.—Late A Taylor, editor of the Lacrosse (Wis.) Leader, who has been an inveterate stammerer, writes as follows about the way to cure the habit: "No stammering person ever found any difficulty in singing. The reason of this is, that by observing Lincoln, ing the measure of the music-by keeping time-the organs of speech are kept in such time—the organs of speech are kept in such position that cumulation is easy. Apply the same rule to reading or speech, and the same result will follow. Let the stammerer take a sentence, say this one—therapper swam, the sentence, say this one-Leander swam the Hellespont'-and pronounce it by syllables, scan it, keeping time with his linger if necessary, letting each syllable occupy the same time, thus: Le-au-der-swam-the-Hel-lespont, and he will not stammer. Let him proiounce slowly at lirst, then laster, but still keeping the time; keeping time with words in. Sectt. d of syllables, and he will be surprised to Dwsley, had that, by very little practice, he will read without stammering, and nearly as rapidly as Clarke, persons ordinarily talk or read. Then practice this in reading and conversation until the habit is broken up. Perseverance and attention habit is broken up. Perseventure a pertect Greenup Lewis

A clergymaa relates that early in his Elliott, ministry he and another brother were conducting a meeting in which there was much religious interest. An old man gave expression to his joy by shouting, and continued it until it began to interrupt the service. Brother H—said to brother W—, "Go and stop that old man's noise." The shouting man at once became quiet. Brother H—asked brother W—, what he said to the old man to ministry he and another brother were conductbrother W— what he said to the old man to make him so quiet. Brother W— replied, "I saked him for a dollar for foreign missions."

A commission of savans wa named, and, for want of any other conveyance they were provided with municipal mourning coaches with the drivers in three-cornered has and full uniform. They started for Villiers and Champiguy, and made a report. The ultimate recommendation was, that the bodies should not be exhained, but that the trenche containing them should be covered with a layer of soil not more than two teet deep, and hat they should be sown with the seeds o rapidly-growing plants—unistand plant, sun-flower, or quickly-growing grasses, which could be used as green food for cattle.

They particularly recommended the sun-llower as a "precious plant," for the purpose. as having a great power of absorbing the nitrogenous matters in which the soil would be so rich, as yielding an excellent oil from its seed, good forage from its leaves, and having a comoustible stalk which can be used in the donestic lireplace.

THE BRIDAL CHAMBER.

On Great Social Evils and Abuses,

The reputation this excellent metheine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellons. Inveterate cases, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulons affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulons affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulons contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public searcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulons poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this inseen and in felt tenant of the organism undernines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the hody, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercless may be suddenly deposited in the lings or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or four lucerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disegsa appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this Sarsaparilla is allength, cure, by the use of this Sarsaparilla. Miss M. E. KELLY.

. "An Editor in Heaven."

Such is the caption of an article which has been going the rounds of the papers for some time, and which appears to be something new "under the sun." Just as if editors were not in the habit of going to lleaven. We'll venture to say that a greater proportion of them go to the home of those who have performed their mission of mercy on earth, thun any other profession or celling that poor mortals fill. An editor in Heaven." There's nothing strange about that, at all. It's almost a moral as well as professional impossibility for them to go anywhere else. Once upon a time, T. STANTON. after the deniise of a member of the "corps editorial," he presented himself at the gate of the "Golden City," and requested admission. The door-keeper asked him what had been the occupation while on Terra Firma? Hereplied he was an editor.

"Weil," said the watchman, "we have a crowd of your kind here now, and they all came in as 'dead hends.' It you pay your passage you can come in, if not, you must place yourself under the control of a personage you ruled tyrnnnically down below,"-meaning

Not having the "wherewith" to go in, our brother of the "quill and scissors" posted off and presented himself at the entrance of Clootie's dark domains. A very dark complexioned gentleman stood sentry, and usked in a gruff voice, "who comes?"

"An humble disciple of Faust," was the ealm reuly.
"Then hold on, you can't be admitted," exclaimed the gentleman in black, evincing con-siderable agitation, and fiercely scowling upon him.

"Why not?" demanded the "typo," who began to get "somewhat hulfish" and looked around for a "sheep's foot" with which to force an entrance.

"Well, sir," replied his stable majesty, "we let one of your profession in here many years ago, and he kept up a continual row with his former delinquent subscribers, and as we have more of that class of persons here than any other, we have passed a law prohibiting the and last 'Monday in August. You have published many things operating against us, and always blamed the Devil with everything that went wrong, so you can't come in. We culorce this rule 'without respect to persons' for our own pence and safety. Now travel.'

Casting a droll leer at the outside sentinel, our typographical friend started off again, determined to get upp above." This time he took with him an old file of his paper and prosenting it to the guardian of the Celestial City, requested that it might be carefully extinined, ductor came along and took him in, telling him that he had been a martyr to the cause of human improvement, and that reaches are selected as the control of the cause of human improvement, and that reaches are selected as the control of the cause of human improvement, and that reaches are selected as the control of the cause of human improvement, and that reaches are selected as the control of him that he had been a martyr to the cause of human improvement, and that resolutions had peen passed to admit all members of the "art ber. A Harmless Reptile.

Not only are toads harmless, but they are absolutely and directly useful to us, perambulating our fields and gardens at night, and devouring vast quantities of injurious insects which could never be destroyed by the hand of man. The mode in which a tool takes its prey is very curious. The singularity beautiful eye of the toad is as quick as it is bright, and if willin the rauge of its vision an insect or a grub should happen to move, the tond is sure to see it, and nearly certain to catch it. First, the toad holds its head as high as possible, so as to make sure of its prey, and then crawts slowly thread it professional to the state of the s tnward it, preferring toget under it il possible. When it is nearly within reach it gazes intently at the insect, its mouth being gradually brought nearer and nearer. Something pink then flashes from its wouth, and the insect

The pink fish is the tongue of the tond, which is formed in a rather currous way. The Faksayterian Chuach-Rev. J. II. Nesurt, base of the tongue is fixed close to the front of the lower jaw, and is long and tapering, the tip pointing down the throat when it is at rest. When, however, it is used for catching prey, it is thrown out with a sort of effick," and the tip, which is covered with a glutinous secretion, adheres to the insect, and conveys it down the tond's throat before the prey has had time to make an effort for escape. When the tond swallows its prey, it does it with a mighty effort, during which the eyes almost disappear, the size of the insect having little to do with the vehemence of the demonstration Sometimes, when a large beetle is swallowed, it does struggle, but too late, and for some time its struggles may be seen through the thin and ribless sides of its captor, the toad sitting the while in perfect composure, not in the least affected by the scrutchings and kickings that are going on in its interior.

Indeed, the stamach of the toud seems as devnid of feeling as if it were of iron. Moreover, the told not only cares nothing for the scratchings and kickings of a large beetle, but is equally indifferent to the stings of wasps bees, and insects similarly armed with venomous weapons, and will cut them with marvellons appetite, as if the sting acted as a sort of gentle and to digostion, like cayenne pepper with encounter. — Cassel * Magazine.

Time to Cur Timber.

A correspondent of the Southern Cultivator, in enmunnicating the following experiments, ORIENTAL & MIAMI POWDER CO'S, remarks that the best time to cut timber is 290 Main street, between Seventh and Eighth, when in full leaf-July and August-and that, the knowledge would have been worth thousands of dollars to him had he possessed it

Lot No. I was cut eut in July, 1860-house logs to put up eabin; red oak. They were put up but not covered; been exposed the whole time; still sound.

No. 2 was square timber for gin houses, of red oak, post oak, and over cup, was gotten out in December, 1860; piled and covered with plank till 1863; exposed since that time sound on the outside about two inches; perfeetly rotten in the heart; red oak worst

No. 3 was of the same kind of timber; subject to more exposure; gotten out in June, 1861; much sounder than No. 2; green timber in July, 1861; subject to the same exposure as No. 2; still quite sound.

---To Thain a lloase to Stand .- Take your horse on the barn floor and throw a strap over his back and fasten it to his right fore foot, lead him along and say " whoa," at the same time pull down the strap, which throwshim on three feet and makes him stop suddenly. This is the hest way known to teach whoa, though you can put on the war bridle, and say whoa, and give him a sharp jerk that will stop him about as soon as the strap to his foot. Then put him in harness with the foot strap, us di-rected to do under the head of "training to harness," and drive him up to the door. moment he undertakes to move, take his foot and say whoa. Get in your carriage and get out again; rattle the thills, make all the noise getting in and ont you can; give him to understand hy snatching his foot each time he moves that he must stand until you tell him to go; and after a few times you can put the whole family in the carriage and he won't stir out of his tracks .- American Stock Journal.

flow a florse Sters .- Boys that ride horses to plow are advised by the Maine Farmer to remember that a horse does nearly all the stepping, when he turns, with the fore leet. He makes use of the hind feet chiefly as a pivot. Now, just take cure of his fore feet and keep them away from the hills, and pay no attennicely.
